William Pitt-Julia B Fee. Sotheby's International Realty CEO Named One of the Most Powerful People in Residential Real Estate on Swanepoel Power 200

William Pitt-Julia B. Fee Sotheby's International Realty has announced that President and CEO Paul Breunich was named on the 2020 Swanepoel Power 200. Breunich ranked No. 102 on the annual national list of the most powerful people in the residential real estate brokerage industry.

Realogy Holdings Corp., which is the leading and most integrated provider of residential real estate services in the U.S., delivering its services through well-known industry brands including Sotheby's International Realty®, dominated the definitive industry ranking. The organization had 29 employees, affiliated brokers and independent sales associates on the list. Notably, Realogy leaders also accounted for nearly 20% of the Top 20 Most Powerful Women Executives.

"Congratulations to all of the talented industry leaders and influencers named to this year's Swanepoel Power 200, many of whom I'm privileged to call colleagues and affiliated partners," said Ryan Schneider, CEO and president of Realogy. "Realogy's consistently strong showing in the SP200 not only demonstrates our ability to attract great talent but also recognizes our incredible momentum in delivering industry-leading products and services to better support our affiliated agents and franchisees and drive additional growth."

"I'm honored to be named to this year's Swanepoel Power 200 and appear next to some of the most powerful and inspiring individuals in residential real estate," said Breunich. "However, this is not an individual achievement. Our success in 2019, and this subsequent recognition, is only possible because of the incredible efforts of everyone in our firm. I'm grateful for the opportunity to work with such talented and dedicated individuals as we strive for another exceptional year in 2020."
